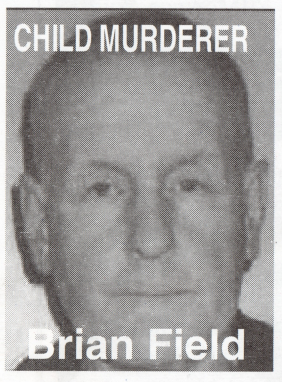
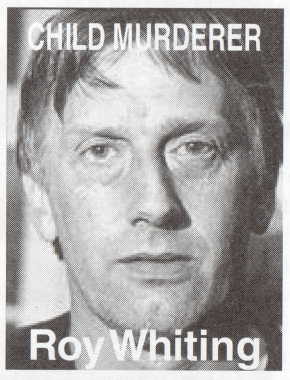
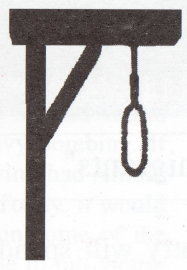
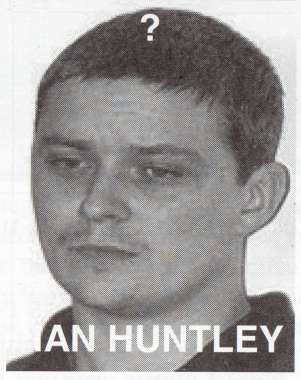
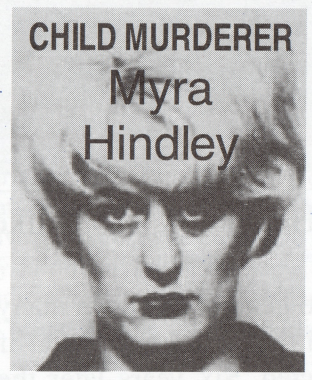
HANG CHILD MURDERERS











The recent murders of Holly Wells and Jessica Chapman raises concerns about the safety of all children in our liberalised society.

TODAY, more than ever, this country needs SARAH'S LAW to give parents the legal right to know the identities of serious child sex offenders living in their community.

Calls for public access to the sex offenders register have been ignored.

Still 110,000 perverts are on the loose in Britain. Still we are not allowed to know who they are.

THE BRITISH PUBLIC DEMANDS ACTION

Politicians don't listen to common sense - Do you?

WHO BENEFITS?

PARLIAMENT, THE PEOPLE OR THE EU?

We are guardians of our land. Let us ensure that it remains British and unspoilt for our great-grandchildren. Oppose New Labour's plans to build and despoil vast areas of our countryside and green belt. The numbers of the British nation are dwindling, all of the extra housing being planned by the government would be for the benefit of asylum-seekers.

The National Front says : "No mass building projects for asylum seekers."

It is vital that Britain be as self-sufficient in food production as possible. We need to reduce the transportation of food wherever possible, and sell by the most direct means of marketing. Farmers' markets are a good idea, and hopefully they will be developed further. This will ensure that we are eating British food and not just provided with what supermarkets decide to sell. Farmers would once again be able to set the price for their own produce, rather than be dictated to by the large corporations. Most Britons would like to buy British food. Would such action of national preference be deemed a criminal offence under the proposed EU xenophobic laws? Common sense would say No. But common sense does not come into the scheme of things when Eurocrats are trying to destroy nation states and national independence.

The whole EU enterprise has become a battle of wills between the people and the secretive "New World Order". We must be even more resolute and determined than the political tyrants in Brussels.

Getting ourselves organised will be the key to our success.

Since the late 1960's governments have interfered in the way agriculture in Britain has been managed. As a result of giving priority to what was considered the larger and more efficient profit-oriented farms, many smaller traditional farming communities were put out of business. Only now, after much damage, have politicians begun to admit that they may have been wrong. The party system is at best a shambles, and at worst a tyranny. It is time that respected and knowledgeable members of the farming community put themselves forward as independent candidates at general elections, so that rural areas can be truly represented.

"New" Labour has planned a massive building programme that will encroach on farmland and areas within the green belt. The government intends to relax building restrictions in order to make this possible. Extra new roads will have to be built to service these new developments, which will eat up even more of our countryside. As we have seen in the past, Parliamentarians won't care a jot if they despoil an area of outstanding natural beauty.

With a reducing British population, it is clear that these houses are being built for the two-and-a-half- million-or-more additional non-white foreigners whom Labour are currently enticing over here. Already, the NHS, education, transport, policing and other services are unable to cope with the population that we have. It doesn't take a rocket scientist to work out that Britain can ill afford any more foreigners, whether they be immigrants, refugees or asylum-seekers.

Those on the countryside march are well aware that the government does not represent them. The fishermen looking at the remains of their fishing fleet are seething at the way that they have been sold out. In Birmingham, Coventry and many other Midland areas, once the heartland of our heavy manufacturing industry, production has become a distant memory. Our city dwellers have for decades had to deal with drug-related crime, unprovoked violence and car theft - problems which have become widespread throughout our once peaceful, green and pleasant land.

In order to overcome our national difficulties, we must have national unity.

In whose interest is Britain currently being run?

Parliament, the people or the EU?

BRITAIN FIRST

TIME TO END THIS SELF-INFLICTED ABASEMENT

The Race Relations Acts were imposed upon an unwary public. These diabolical new laws have no root in the British Constitution but have been merely invented by aliens for the benefit of aliens. From their first introduction, these ridiculous acts have given the foreigner a whip hand over us. Acts of racism have been far more widespread among the ethnic communities as they have engaged in racial and religious preference, in order to build for themselves social, business, cultural and religious enclaves. Through acting in a racist manner, Asians in particular have prospered. In comparison, the British have become a collection of dominated individuals, and as a result have been disinherited of much that they once had.

The aliens who have filled the lucrative positions in the race relations business have often contravened their own laws. The Campaign for Racial Equality produced a deliberately insulting racist poster, which was placed in prominent places throughout the country. They received demands by the Advertising Standards Authority to take them down because they breached the code of conduct regarding rules of taste and decency. The Race Equality watchdog refused to comply. Muhammed Mashuq Ally, the Chairman for Racial Equality in Wales, was suspended, then forced to resign over allegations of inappropriate behaviour towards staff amid questions over the handling of publicly-funded grants to local Asian businessmen.

Gurbux Singh, the Chairman of the Commission for Racial Equality, a close friend of the Blair's, attended the conclusion of a one-day cricket final between England and India. Singh had been drinking heavily and became cocky when India won the game. He launched a foul-mouthed tirade at English police officers as he left the ground. As a result of this dreadful racist outburst, Singh and his wife were both arrested. The CRE Chairman was accused of threatening behaviour under section 4 of the Public Order Act, and his wife of obstructing police. Gurbux Singh had previously been a councillor on the notorious, extreme, left-wing Haringey Council. He was engaged by the equally extreme Jack Straw to sit on the Government's Race Relations Forum. Singh receives £108,000 a year for a job that should never have been created. After he had admitted making the drunken attack on the two police officers, Gurbux Singh's position became untenable. He will receive an unwarranted £120,000 pay-off when he leaves.

Those struggling to meet their mortgage repayments should remember this outrageous decision as well as thousands of other such handouts when they vote at the next general election. Last year the CRE conned the British out of nearly £2 million. Much of this financial burden arises from Asians claiming to have been overlooked for job promotion.

The question that must be asked is why the hell should foreigners be treated equal to us in our own country?

Also, why let ourselves be threatened by them. It really is time for us to seize the initiative and regain the upper hand in our own country.

Gurbux Singh has been encouraged in his impertinence not only by the Labour Party but by Conservatives and Liberals as well.

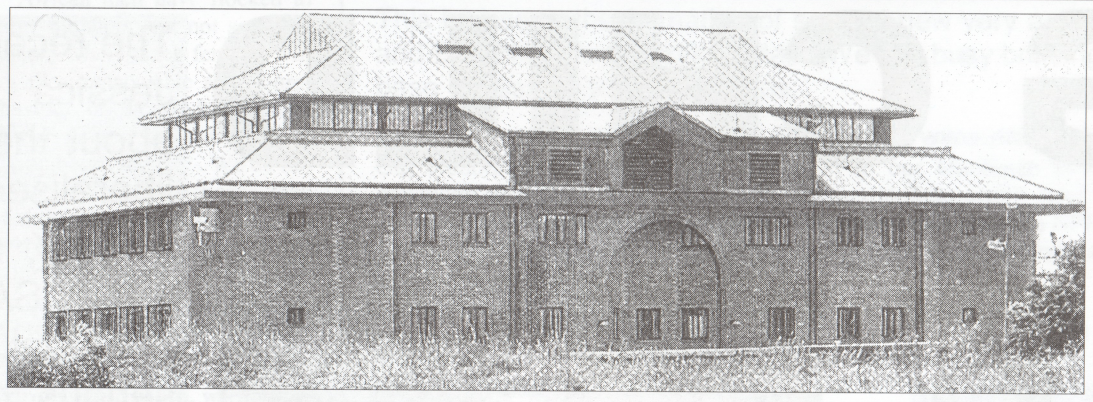
BRITISH TO THE BACK OF THE QUEUE



Western Heights - "Hotel like facilities for illegal immigrants"

At the last two general elections many people believed that it did not matter if Labour got elected. Six years later the grim reality of how dreadful they are must have dawned on everybody. Often over sixties are treated despicably while waiting for or receiving hospital treatment. All over the country homes for the elderly have been closing down, creating confusion and worry for the residents. Council care homes have been forced to close due to lack of funds, while private residences have been put out of business by new Euro regulations and red tape. As fast as homes for the elderly close down, asylum centres get built. For one of the world's supposedly wealthy countries the old-age pension is a pittance. Although no doubt intended increases to the pension have had to be scrapped due to unjustifiable amounts of money being allocated to economic migrants and bogus asylum-seekers. Many Britons who fought for this country will spend their final years in abject poverty while New Labour cronies; illegal immigrants and economic refugees will live in grand style at our expense.

At Western Heights detention centre, illegal immigrants waiting to be deported have at the cost of 1.3 million pounds had every luxury provided for them. Facilities include free personal laundry service, private medical care with doctors and nurses available on site every day, a fully equipped gymnasium, private swimming pool, table tennis, expensive new furniture, recreation rooms and electronic and communications equipment plus television in every room.

In contrast 71 year-old Jean Toms who was in a serious condition suffering from stomach cancer was left for 19 hours on a trolley in a hospital corridor overnight, because there was no bed available for her. She was put back on the trolley the following day where after 3 hours she died.

"Jean Toms left to die in agony, while in discomfort and neglected in a corridor on a hospital trolley"

The comfort of aliens is obviously more important to parliamentarians than our own elderly.

As for the overworked and overtaxed under 60's they are merely a force to keep New Labour and foreigners in the style to which they have become accustomed.

ANTI-ISLAM CAMPAIGN

Give our uninvited (No referendum) guests an inch and they think it's the green light for a British Islamic State!

Mosques are springing up all over the place. These mosques are proven to be Islamic terrorist recruitment and training grounds. Many of the "British" terrorists captured in Afghanistan and now held in Camp X-ray were recruited by Islamic groups working from the likes of the Finsbury Park Mosque in London.

Recently in Britain we have had pro-Islam marches in Luton and demonstrations in Trafalgar Sq. Now they celebrate the anniversary of bin ladens achievements of 11.09.01 at Finsbury Park.

THE NF WILL NOT STAND BY AND LET THIS HAPPEN

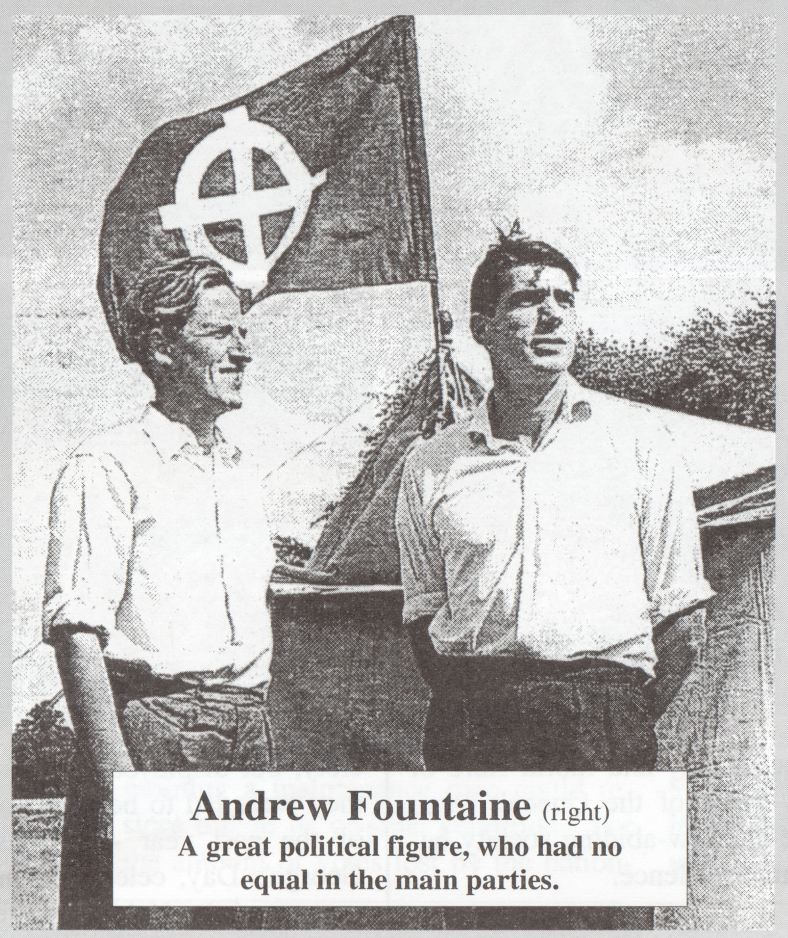
ANDREW FOUNTAINE - AN OUTSTANDING BRITISH PATRIOT

Andrew Fountaine was born in 1918, the son of Vice Admiral Charles Fountaine who had been naval ADC to King George V. The family had been established in Norfolk since the 16th century and had become respected landowners. In 1946 Andrew took over control of the family estate and very soon after, at the Conservative Party conference, he made clear his anxieties over the nation-wrecking programme of the elected government. He introduced a resolution to "finally root out the ever-increasing subversive foreign influence within our own country and the Dominions overseas". The rank and file members met these sentiments with rapturous applause. However, daggers were immediately drawn against him at Conservative Central Office. In 1948 he once again received an enthusiastic response when he described the Labour administration as "a group of conscientious objectors, national traitors, semi-alien mongrels and hermaphrodite Communists."

By 1948 it had become clear to Andrew and many other patriots that there was a conflict of interest between the ordinary people and those who had taken political control. In 1950 Andrew Fountaine stood as a Conservative Party candidate at Chorley in Lancashire on a patriotic pro-British platform. He had his candidature disowned by Conservative Party Central Office, which confirmed his belief that both the government and opposition had embarked on a course of national and cultural destruction.



Andrew Fountaine (right)
A great political figure, who had no equal in the main parties.

In 1952 Andrew Fountaine held a public meeting which was attended by over 200 people. It was here that he first expounded the policies of what he called the National Front Movement. So, technically, it could be said that this is the fiftieth anniversary of our party. Having lost faith with the main parties, Andrew sought an alternative, and in 1957 he became President of the National Labour Party. This organisation reflected Andrew's beliefs and put patriotism and British regeneration at the top of its agenda.The three main parties at this time were beavering away, breaking up the Empire, sabotaging British Industry, drawing up plans for comprehensive education, abolishing national service and organising the coloured invasion of Britain.

The National Labour Party amalgamated with the British National Party, (not to be confused with the current BNP). During 1967 these two groups joined up with the League of Empire Loyalists to form the National Front, of which, for many years, Andrew Fountaine was the Deputy Chairman. Andrew became the first National Front candidate when he stood in a Parliamentary by-election in Acton. He received 1,400 votes, a good result for an unknown party.

THE PROPHECY an extract from Andrew Fountain's 1952 election meeting.•

"We have not in thirty years had a government of men who have been prepared to put the nation before any party political considerations. Men who will sell their nationhood, betray, their own countrymen to defeat their hated political enemies. Of the two (Tories and Socialists) I believe the Conservatives are the lesser evil, but I want something better for my country than the choice of two evils. While we have become tired and decadent the coloured world is neither tired nor passive ... unless we can develop morale we may as well throw our atom bombs to the bottom of the sea".

He went on to describe how" Mexico - an empire and a great and growing civilisation – had been destroyed in 1518 by "black magic" the auto suggestion of defeat, Andrew declared "the same kind of magic influences this country today. Had they united the armies of Montezuma could have annihilated the small army of Cortez, but they trembled before the invader because they believed he was a god, who according to their mythology would conquer them. A nation was thus destroyed by a myth. That myth of self destruction, national suicide exists in this country today. Unless within a very short time this nation can be united in a single entity, the hope for our life as a nation and indeed for the whole of Western Europe no longer exists".

In later years following the division and near collapse of the National Front, it was Andrew W. Fountaine who led the way in forming the National Front Constitutional Movement, which eventually emerged as a revitalised National Front.

There is no doubt, that when all these facts are assimilated by the wider nationalist community in this country, that the position of the late Commander Andrew Fountaine within the historical context will be assured.

We are indebted to Mr R. Tenney for providing us with documents relating to Andrew Fountain's early political career.

PARLIAMENT HAS MADE EVERY ONE OF US APPEAR A PATSY

Parliamentarians and liberal public servants have psyched large sections of the British public into becoming subordinate to the foreigner. As a result, many aliens have demanded what they are not entitled to, and treat the British like dirt. In bringing us to this pathetic state, those politicians who have introduced the race relation's acts have a lot to answer for.

On the 15th August it was reported that two English women had suffered severely at the hands of a pair of cocky black females.

Pat Bottrill was awarded the MBE in 1977.

She is currently chairman of the Royal College of Nurses, a job which she does voluntarily, and for 40 years has worked as a stalwart for the NHS.

Pat Bottrill made an innocent remark, using the title of an Agatha Christie play, "Ten Little Niggers".

Immediately, the black union general secretary seized the opportunity to humiliate Mrs Bottrill and call for her resignation.

This savage and uncalled-for attack on Pat Bottrill by Beverly Malone was not made by a timid, upset immigrant, but by a seasoned and hardened communist. Beverly Malone obviously feels that she has the right to act as accuser, judge and jury to white women. She was formerly President of the American Nurses Association, a position which she left to go and work for President Bill Clinton.

Beverly Malone
Not wanted in Britain

Since arriving in Britain, she has attended at least one Labour fund-raising event, so politics are still uppermost in her mind. Beverly Malone, an academic, secured for herself the job of general secretary of the RCN, a position which up until now, as you would expect, has been held by a Briton. According to the Daily Mail of 15.8.02, she received a first-year salary package of £200,000, and has been the subject of a nurses' petition of no confidence.

The second case has been that of a black female traffic warden, who attacked and was racially abusive to a white female motorist whose car had broken down. Oluwakemi Kehinde, a 28 year-old African, called Leisha Bright "f------ white trash" while punching her and banging her head on the pavement. Fellow-blacks egged her on in the assault. The English woman blacked out and needed hospital treatment, she still has facial bruising two months later.

We should not tolerate attacks upon British citizens by vicious, white-hating foreigners. Both of the women mentioned in this report should be fined sufficiently to cover the cost of deportation back to their countries of origin.

Anti-nationalist, establishment politicians are not only responsible for the ever-increasing crimes of race hate within their artificial multi-racial society, they can also be held accountable for the escalation of murder, rape, theft, suicide, abduction and drug related crimes which have come about as a direct result of their permissive policies.

London - Sun 25th August.
Terry Blackham organised an excellent demonstration against the Militant Muslim Fanatics in Trafalgar Square today.
Over 200 supporters joined a strong NF contingent to oppose these supporters of terrorism and osama bin laden. The party received masses of TV footage on sky news as a result of the events of this day. More activities are being planned against these fanatics soon, keep a check on our forum for details.

Grimsby - Sat. 17th August.
Local activists and members held a day of action in Grimsby town Centre. Over 400 recruitment leaflets were given out in the (air-conditioned) Freshley Place. Later we leafleted other shopping areas and sold many copies of the Flame in local pubs. Everyone who attended had a great day and was well pleased.

This was only our first of many activities, which will bring the National Front's message of "British Pride" to the people of Grimsby.

Special thanks are owes to everyone who made the day a great success, including the member who jumped out of a passing car on the spur of the moment to join our leafleting team

Bicester - Saturday 24h August.
Around twenty five party activists attended a very successful "Day of Action" in the Oxfordshire town of Bicester. Around 1,500 leaflets were given out, and over 500 signatures wee gained on the NF's petition supporting the introduction of Sarah's law. 3 new members were also taken in on the day, which topped an excellent activity. 6 members of the anti-nazi league turned up to oppose us, but when it rained they went home, one actually signed our petition.

Worcester NF - Have just produced a local leaflet and are getting out and about the area building their newly formed Active Unit.

North East - By far the busiest Region over the last 6 months.

They have now held 17 public "Days of Action" and activities all over the North East, including the "Boycott B&Q Demo!, "Stop the Mosque" and "Get the Puffs out of our Parks", along with the leafleting of estates.

Now into the 4 issue of their quarterly 8 page NFNE News - send 3 x 1st Class stamps for the latest "September Issue" or send £5 for 10 copies post paid to: PO Box 761, Sunderland, SR4 8YP. Full details of the action from the North East on their own website - www.nfne.co.uk

Yorkshire - 3rd August. A "Day of Action" was held in Castleford. This was well attended with people from NFNE, North West, Scotland and HQ as well as the local activists - putting Yorkshire NF back on the map.

South East, Peterborough, Northwest, Norfolk and Lincolnshire have also been very active in the last few months.

A RAPID INCREASE IN CHILD MURDERS

The murders of Holly Wells and Jessica Chapman have deeply affected parents throughout Britain, for every couple nowadays go through times of anxiety when their youngster is overdue or missing. Every time a child is abducted and murdered, it brings a sense of shock, revulsion and disbelief.

Our hearts go out to the parents, family and friends of the young victims.

After the murder of little Sarah Payne parents made it clear that they wanted a register of paedophiles and for measures to be taken to keep their children safe. In their usual holier than thou, politically-correct manner, the government has thumbed its nose at the general public and proceeded with its own homosexual and child sex-teaching agenda.

Before the liberal brain-washing programme began, eighty six per cent of the public wanted the restoration of the death penalty for child killers and terrorists. Recent polls have shown that substantially more than half of the population are still calling for it.

Leading criminologist Colin Wilson say's that "Paedophiles know that they are certain to be caught when they are abducting or abusing, they are living in the present only and appear to have no thought for the future. Most paedophiles are inadequate personalities and emotional cripples. With astonishing frequency, they come from families with a weak father and a domineering mother. Such a background instils a fear - or at least a feeling of caution - of women, so that their sexual desires instead focus on children.

Many paedophiles come from left-wing leaning professions such as teachers and social workers.

This poses the question, has the increase in paedophiles been brought about deliberately through communist social engineering?

The Women's Liberation movement has done much to make women pushy and domineering, while undermining men at every opportunity. "Who needs men, they are a waste of time" was a theme of the marxist harlots. As a result of this propogandam many girls decided to rear children without a father, or at least one that only made occasional appearances. Labour-run councils have encouraged this development by giving priority in housing to single mothers with children.

The Women's Liberation movement has been undermining the male role in society and the importance of fathers. Boys have suffered from a feminising programme. Do you remember the absurd teaching reforms which called for boys to be denied male aggressive activities? It was claimed that boys and girls were the same and that only through playing seperate gender roles they became different.

Boys were discouraged from their traditional activities and told to do ironing and play with dolls. Certainly there is a distinct difference in attitude between those who went through the education system prior to the "swinging-sixties" and those who have come after. The older group have also had the advantage of having carried out two years National Service.

Clearly the government has no intention of acceding to our wishes on the subject of paedophiles. There needs to be many large public demonstrations in order to frighten and shame Parliament into meeting our demands.

The time of acceptance of liberalism and political-correctness is drawing to a close.

No longer should we live in fear for our children's safety.

TRIUMPH OF THE JUBILEEE

By Derek Godfrey

The outstanding success of the Queen's Golden Jubilee must have come as something of a surprise even to a devout monarchist, as the huge public demonstration of loyalty to the Sovereign was also a nationwide endorsement of the Monarchy. Britain has been a Christian kingdom for a thousand years and the general consensus is that it should remain so.

Far from being archaic or unconstitutional, as anti-Royalists would have us believe, the Crown today, together with the House of Lords is an essential bastion of the freedom that would be denied us were the anti-patriotic, insidious forces of the far left and their Marxist allies ever to realise their ambitions of seeing both institutions abolished.

The outbreak of sectarian violence in Belfast, which undoubtedly was engineered by Republican factions to coincide with the celebrations, was a reminder that beneath the exuberance of the Jubilee lay the fact that we are a divided and troubled society. As well as the cult of "permissiveness" and licentious philosophy gradually undermining and threatening the probity and moral fibre of our once-great nation, the fifty years of the Queen's reign have also witnessed a once-safe and law-abiding society become plagued with a rise in criminal violence.

A deliberate lowering of education standards and a readily available supply of drugs have ensured a rise in delinquent and criminal behaviour. However, the most traumatic change of our British society, one which we were once told by a Labour politician "has changed the face of Britain for all time" has been the influx of vast multitudes of people from an empire no longer existing. The result has been that many of our towns and cities have been turned into places where the traditional British way of life has been virtually expunged. The indigenous British people were warned by those who had caused the problems not to be over-enthusiastic in their flag-waving during the Jubilee, lest it be regarded as a "provocation" by people who have nothing in common with us.

Just seven years before the Queen came to the throne, Great Britain had emerged from a war in which great sacrifices had been made, not only in defence of our freedom, but also in restoring liberty to other peoples.

Although the right of free speech has always been one of our most-cherished and jealously guarded civil liberties, the following years were to see the implementation of laws specifically formulated to suppress any outspoken challenge to government policy relating to certain social problems. Some these have been deliberately and needlessly imported into Britain, and today pose an ever-increasing threat, not only to the stability of our British society but our very nationhood itself.

Up until recently the majority of the British public deplored the transformation of their society, but displayed an unfortunate tendency to accept what they were led to believe was inevitable. Three major events of the past year - the passing of the Queen Mother, St George's Day, celebrated in a manner not seen in previous years, and the Golden Jubilee showed the general public not to be as susceptible to media and political mind-bending as some would wish. While the spirit lives, no cause is lost. There is nothing beyond the capabilities of a resolute people. The history of the British has been a long saga of confronting and achieving victory over seemingly-overwhelming odds.

If we can defeat the foreign enemy, we should be more than capable of defeating the enemy within.

All it requires is the will.

PLUGGING THE ESCAPE ROUTE

The Reverend Peter Shepard is the Headmaster of Canon Slade School in Bolton. Like many Church of England schools, it outperforms the other secondary schools in the area.

Communists who have infiltrated church authorities are urging single denomination schools to open their doors to all and sundry.

The headmaster has defied his ungodly enemy and stuck to his Christian principles. He asked: "Why should I have other faiths in my C of E school?" Which is the only valid point. Church of England schools were designed for English Christian children, in order that they might be brought up in a traditional Christian manner. Recently, parents have been able to avoid the dreadful comprehensives by sending their children to a single-denomination school. Comprehensive schools were designed to create ill-discipline, irreverence and low standards.

The government has been forced to admit that for decades our children's prospects for a decent education have been sacrificed on an altar of political correctness (communism).

Religious schools have provided an escape route from state control and, as a result, have been the best- performing schools in the country. The government and left-wing church officials want to bring the church schools down to the level of comprehensives by insisting that they take in all and sundry, including (of course) a high percentage of children of immigrants and non-Christians.

Church authorities are using the excuse of last year's race riots to bludgeon the single-denomination schools into destroying their purpose and efficiency. We cannot see any logic in their argument.

The National Front has always been against millions of foreigners entering our country in the first place. That in itself would have prevented a race problem ever arising.

The idea of people of different races and religions living together in one area harmoniously has never been realized and the communists who are pushing for more multi-racialism and multi-culturalism know it.
There will be no racial harmony in Britain until the majority of foreigners have returned home.

The Reverend Peter Shepard stands up for maintaining Christianity in Christian schools.

In Bolton, 10% of the population are non-white foreigners. The government is threatening to cut off funding for Church of England schools if they do not allow themselves to be swamped by aliens. When it comes to tyrannical dictatorships, New Labour is equal to Mugabe. Parliament has sat in smug self- satisfaction and watched the ethnic cleansing of our kith and kin in Zimbabwe, and they are just as keen to see our own disappearance here in Britain, as every one of their actions proves.

We must congratulate the Reverend Peter Shepard in his stand against the unholy alliance of communists and other bodies representing the Anti-Christ.

We hope that the people living in Bolton have the good sense to support him in his stand for what is right.

THE WELL-TIMED FRAUDULENT SMEAR

The daily newspapers on 1st May, 24 hours before the council elections, carried a story about "racial attacks" on a synagogue in Finsbury Park, North London.

These so-called attacks occur with surprising regularity just before any election where right-wing candidates are standing. No one has ever been found responsible and the finger of suspicion usually ends up pointing either at the incumbent rabbi or at one of his associates. No right-wing groups in Britain attack synagogues.

To do so during an election period, when it would be the nationalist vote that would suffer as a result, would be an act of sheer stupidity.

"ludicrous allegations and as usual no evidence"

If we study the photograph of the so-called attack, it has all of the hallmarks of being faked. The paint was not thrown on, but carefully applied with precision, so that it narrowly missed the Stars of David. The paint pot has been carefully left on a chair, which has been strategically placed in the picture. What looks like a child's Union flag is prominently left resting against the pulpit as though it were a calling card. We read, however, that this flag is the property of the synagogue. An empty box, which for no apparent reason has been adorned with tape, has been left to make the place look untidy. For the same purpose a collection of what appear to be carrier bags has been strewn at the top of the stairs. A fire extinguisher has been moved, which adds to the impression of disorder. What appears to be sand has been scattered on the floor.

The much-prized Torah scroll has not been touched.

The whole thing definitely looks to have been stage-managed. In one morning a maintenance man could restore this to its original condition. For the amount of votes lost by the nationalist parties, this stunt would be cheap at the price. Even at the time of the first discovery of this disturbance, it was announced that the synagogue would be open on Saturday as usual.

Even a naive person might ask why in an area of Moslem extremists, and at a time of high nervousness among the Jewish community, the synagogue was left unattended - or perhaps it wasn't.

A SERIOUS LACK OF OPPOSITION

Tony Blair and his government of nation-wreckers are getting away with rushing through seriously damaging legislation without a word of criticism from the opposition parties.

This lack of challenge from the Conservatives gives a false impression that everything is reasonably satisfactory. The Liberals, who are just as left-wing and revolutionary as Labour, have predictably backed the government on contentious issues, including support for the single European currency, the promotion of homosexuality, relaxation of the drug laws and the genocide of the white race.

The media, although occasionally critical, still talk of our Prime Minister and Home Secretary as though they had political stature - which they do not. For the most part, the only political ideas that New Labour have, are those of revolutionary International Socialism and Marxism with which they were indoctrinated at university. During the entire period of this "New" Labour government, not one single cabinet minister has made a profound statement regarding anything. In order to make things easy for Blair's government, there seems to be an all-party agreement not to rock the boat or do anything to hold back changes that further advance our national destruction.

The problems resulting from having Labour in office are glaringly obvious to even a casual observer, yet the Conservative Party under the leadership of Iain Duncan Smith is proving to be no more of an opposition to Labour than it was under William Hague.

On the odd occasion when Prime Minister Blair has been confronted by members of the public asking questions and demanding answers, he has fled like a frightened little girl. The government cannot justify their actions and need to be confronted in a determined manner in order to bring a halt to our national decline.

"Marion Chilcott cuts Tony Blair down to size. Yet the Prime Minister has no answers"

National Front supporter Marion Chilcot led an attack on Tony Blair when he broke convention and turned a visit to a Women's Institute into a party political speech.

The Prime Minister was so traumatised by being cut down to size that he went to the White House to seek solace and advice.

During the election campaign in May last year, Sharon Stoner (above left) struck terror into Tony Blair and caused him to flee, when she demanded to know what actions the government was going to take to improve conditions in the NHS.

NOT A PENNY FOR OUR ENEMIES

We object most strongly to the idea of public funding for political parties.

The Labour Party and their Communist allies have used violence, lies, smears and attacks upon us since the day we were formed.

Labour, Communists, Socialists - whatever they are calling themselves at the time - pose a serious threat to the British nation, and the idea of receiving our money is not acceptable.

This idea of public funding has arisen because all three major parties are no longer able to attract enough members to their unappealing policies. Union leaders no longer feel that the Labour Party supports them, and consequently have dramatically cut the amount they are prepared to hand over. The reason that has been given to the disillusioned public is that it will prevent any more "cash for favours" episodes. In practice, it would not stop ambitious entrepreneurs from giving financial inducements, in order to curry favour with influential ministers.

The National Front has had to get along on tiny sums in comparison to the establishment parties. We have also had to endure a hostile reception from the press and television, who fervently support the parties we detest and intend to replace.

On top of this, and for the same reason, we cannot get our literature distributed through the normal channels, hold public meetings or obtain High Street office premises. Despite all of these problems, we would not want to see public funding of political parties. We have enough confidence in our aims to believe that we will eventually gain enough support to mount a winning campaign.

We are, however, not so gullible as to believe that the National Front would ever receive any of the funds available.

Although our money collected in taxes would be given to the discredited old parties, we would be discriminated against and denied any public funding, either because we have no one currently sitting in the House of Commons, or because we are deemed to be "racists".

News & Activities

Scotland - In May 2002, the National Front Scotland was reorganised under the guidance of our new organiser Neil Whitehouse. Our PO Box is based in Aberdeen (see contact list) , but we have on board many members from all over Scotland.

Our first major activity was a leaflet drop in the King Street area of Aberdeen to protest about the decision to build a new Mosque to replace the existing one in the "Spittal" area of Aberdeen. The local council have approved the application from the local Muslim authority to build the new Mosque. More activities have been planned regarding this disgraceful decision.

Next up for the local members in Aberdeen was an activity at the student accommodation situated at the Hillhead complex of Aberdeen University. We received information from a very reliable source regarding the closure of the student accommodation to make way for 500 Asylum seekers. Local member Dave MacDonald contacted the "Aberdeen Press and Journal" newspaper and was told that they had heard about the Asylum seekers but couldn't get any answer from the local council on this matter. We will be keeping an eye on this situation and we can assure you that we will protest until we overturn the decision to house these scroungers in our country.

The Scottish branch received their first piece of press coverage when Aberdeen members took to the streets in the Mastrick area of Aberdeen to leaflet the area after being informed about the housing of a convicted child molester. The response from the local residents was of shock and disgust. Some elderly residents told our members that they wished the death penalty was back in place in this country so that child murderers and serious sex offenders would be taken care of once and for all. A reporter from the "press and Journal" conducted an interview with Dave MacDonald and informed him that he had talked to Detective Inspector Harry Thorburn of Grampian Police and he had received no denial about the housing of the paedophile from the Inspector. The interview with Dave MacDonald appeared on page 1 of the "Press and Journal" on Tuesday 13th august 2002; following the publication of the interview we have received many new enquiries. More Scottish news and information is on our webpage at www.nfne.co.uk

The Scottish membership is growing by the week and we will not rest on our laurels.

Many thanks to all who have helped us to become established in Scotland namely Norman Fowler at Whitehaven and the lads in the North East of England and Mick at HQ. Thanks again - NF Scotland.

LABOUR AND THE IRA

Tony Blair sped to the scene of the bombing in Omagh from where he gave a press statement which included the following words:

"What I saw in the Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast will stay with me for the rest of my life."

And: " I think, as any parent would, of my own sons, or daughter. I know I would go mad with grief should it happen to them."

Subsequently his attitude turned out to be what could at best be described as indifferent. New Labour have shown the same cavalier attitude when sending other people's sons into the Balkans and Afghanistan. They are now scheming to do the same in Iraq.

We doubt that Tony Blair's words of sorrow at the scene of the IRA terrorist attack in Omagh were sincere.

We believe that he merely used the opportunity for a photo-shoot with the hope of making himself more popular. It is surprising how easily some members of the public are fooled by such empty gestures.

A woman we spoke to recently has as her MP a man who is pro EU, loves asylum-seekers, and has seen the local hospital close down. The schools in his constituency have no discipline, their education level is abysmal, and there is a serious drug problem on the streets. None of these problems seem to bother this MP. However, because he used his authority to get a drain cleared for a neighbour, she regards him as a good MP.

Blair's real attitude to the IRA was shown when Gerry Adams and Martin McGuiness came to London to collect the keys to their offices in Parliament. You would have expected a stony silence for the pair, considering the IRA bombing at the Conservative Party conference in which Norman Tebitt's wife was left crippled, and the murder in Westminster of MP Airey Neave - on top of all the other bombings and killings the IRA has been responsible for over the years. Contrary to what you might expect, a grand display was laid on for Messrs Adams and McGuiness.

First, they were enthusiastically greeted by the Prime Minister at his home in Downing Street, where they held a press conference. They were then driven in a limousine the short distance to the Palace of Westminster where they were ceremoniously presented with the keys to their office in Parliament. The four-man IRA delegation has been given a suite in the most prestigious part of the building, overlooking Westminster Abbey and Parliament Square. From the beginning of the "Peace Process", the IRA have shown no sign of being prepared to give up their acts of terrorism - in fact they have been amassing weapons of even greater destruction.

Gerry Adams and Martin McGuiness, in common with many members of the Labour Party, have a desire to abolish the monarchy. Through allowing Sinn Fein members to take a place in Parliament without swearing an oath of allegiance to the Crown, a dangerous precedent has been set.

In stark contrast to the IRA's warm welcome, every British nationalist knows that if he gets elected he can expect open hostility as well as being cold-shouldered by every establishment MP.

As has been said, "When traitors gain control, none dare call it treason."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

I switched on the television to see what was on and came across yet another stage-managed group discussion, debating the virtues of political correctness. On this occasion the topic was the "public's acceptance and greater tolerance of homosexuals." I find the disgusting things that homosexuals do to each other as revolting as ever I did. I would not in any way attack any of these people but I certainly do not want this kind of activity promoted as being good and wholesome, and I do object to a tiny minority of media dearies, claiming that they speak for the nation. I understand that children from the age of five are being taught in schools that there is no difference between the values of homosexual and heterosexual partnering. I have already seen such propaganda in a schools programme made for infants, which showed parents of the same sex carrying on as though it were perfectly normal. Needless to say, families of mixed race also featured in this assault on our culture, beliefs and traditions.

Two generations of schoolchildren have had their life chances lowered as a result of the Comprehensive system. This was introduced by communists within the government and has been perpetuated by the communist-led teachers' unions and the politically-correct who can be found in large numbers working for the education authorities and local councils. This is no doubt due to the fact that most of these appointments are advertised only in the Guardian newspaper. Sex and social science of the left-wing variety seem to have been put on the curriculum at the expense of more worthy subjects. I would like to see the education agenda returned to its proper condition with English and Maths given top priority. The subjects of History and Geography should be restored, and the lessons in sex education, social science and multi-faith religion which replaced them should be scrapped. My children will only get one chance of receiving a decent education. I do not see why a small band of left-wing cranks should be allowed to spoil their chances. Ray Honeyford was ejected from his teaching job by leftists, merely for talking commonsense. I would like to see parents supporting each other, in a demand to have removed all the politically-correct brigade who are letting our children down. The recent increase in juvenile delinquency, drug dependency and teenage crime has been a result of left-wing ideology. In my opinion we have already allowed the dangerous nonsense of political-correctness to go on for far too long. B. Milne, Exeter

We received a letter from a reader in Harrow urging us to write about the horrendous and unacceptable way in which many of our elderly are being treated. Such is the contempt and absolute power which the politicians have today, that they cannot even be shamed into taking the kind of necessary action, that any decent person would as a matter of course.

The writer informs us that a programme on channel 4 which was transmitted on the 23rd May, showed how elderly white citizens were being abused. There was a case where a woman's husband died and she was unable to cope. Instead of sending a social worker the local Council sent round bailiffs to evict her. She was fifty one at the time and now twenty years later she is still living on the streets. This appalling state of affairs is not uncommon. One only has to wander around Central London to see that all of the down and outs and those sleeping rough are white. Yet whites in London comprise no more than 56% of the population. In our so-called wealthy country where a billion pounds can be squandered on the Dome it is madness that so many of our people are left destitute and in abject poverty. Clearly our politicians simply could not care less. Thanks to the added social problems caused by the multi-racial society and a government that is unwilling to clamp down on criminals and delinquents, the poorer members of our society are left at the mercy of the thugs who find them easy targets. All three major parties are now comprised almost entirely of politically-correct morons, who have neither the will nor ability to do anything about solving our nations problems. There is a growing awareness that our own parents, grandparents, uncles and aunts are being treated by those in authority worse than dogs, in order to curry favour with foreigners. For years the truth has been concealed from the public by media whitewash. One no longer needs to be informed by television and newspaper propagandists, you only have to open your eyes to see what is going on.

A. M. Kent

The lady who sent in this letter feels strongly that we should have a national day of action, in order to show our total contempt and disgust for this government's behaviour towards our senior citizens. After all it was they more than anyone who made Britain great. We realise that it has not been in the British character to take to the streets and register our anger, as the French do. Clearly it does get results and when confronted with a government of smug tyrants; as we have in "New" Labour it seems that we have no option.

NATIONAL WOMEN'S FRONT

We now have a serious drug problem in towns, villages and cities throughout the UK. This is a situation that urgently needs to be addressed. Our own British youth are desperate for help and guidance, but our politicians are clearly more interested in spending our money on making life comfortable for healthy, able-bodied asylum-seekers. Instead of building centres for economic migrants, we should be creating drug rehabilitation clinics for our own youngsters.

There will, however, be no government initiative to solve the drug problem, firstly because the situation clearly suits those in power, and secondly because drugs are used in the circles in which some MP's move, and they feel that a tight clampdown on drug abuse may lose them some votes.

An artificial youth culture has been created which includes young-teen sex as well as the seriously health-damaging use of drugs. At every level of society people are suffering from this insane habit. Pictures of teenagers who have died from drugs regularly appear in the daily newspapers. We notice that a very high percentage of those dying have been attractive and intelligent young, white girls.

With the arrival of the "swinging sixties", children were no longer brought up with the same principles of self-discipline. Gone was the engendering of national spirit that used to take place in schools, or the idea that we should be responsible for our actions. Traditional values, politeness and courtesy were portrayed as corny and out of date. As a result, many children now do not know how to behave towards each other, so bullying has become commonplace. Nor do many of the young have the strength of character or self-discipline to refuse to take drugs just because their friends take them. So many schoolchildren have absorbed the sub-culture that has been proffered to them, through television, the pop music industry, by radio DJ's and teen magazines, that they find it impossible to follow a sensible and traditional path. We often hear parents blamed entirely for their children's bad behaviour, but parents can only do so much and their views are drowned out by the 24-hour entertainment circus.

From the time toddlers first learn to speak they need to be taught how to discriminate. Yes, discriminate, the word that liberals so detest. To be able to distinguish between right and wrong, good and bad, what is acceptable behaviour, and what is not. Youngsters need to learn that rights come only through responsibility and that you cannot just take what you want. It is also important that they are taught to respect other people. Because for a very long time this essential training for the young has been dropped, we see today so many crimes of murder, rape, personal assault, theft and abduction.

WARTIME BRITAIN 2002

By Derek Godfrey

Most people living in areas of London during the Second World War were regularly targeted by the enemy for heavy bombing. If not having been bombed out themselves, or not having had similar misfortune, they usually knew someone who had. Today, it would be no exaggeration to say that anyone living within some of the worst crime-affected parts of London is just as liable to fall victim to injuries and personal loss as were those in wartime Britain.

On the streets of Brixton, now considered to be the crime capital of Britain, Yardie gangsters and a variety of other criminals peddle crack cocaine in open defiance of a police force severely handicapped by rulings of political correctness. These procedures seem to be aimed more at achieving the impossible dream of "good community relations" than at eradicating a problem that poses an ever-increasing threat to the stability of our society.

A recent weekly article in a Bedfordshire newspaper, recalling past headline events, focused on Luton's notorious Marsh Farm Estate. The residents were reported to be living in fear of gangs of youths who were generally despoiling the quality of life for them, with abuse, thieving and vandalism. On one occasion the thugs attacked a police car and burned out another vehicle. A few years later, Marsh Farm was to erupt into two nights of violent criminal and politically-orchestrated rioting. Marsh Farm, however, is but one of many lawless areas of Britain today where people, especially the elderly, have their daily lives disrupted and traumatised by violent gangs. Some members of the anti-social mob have become hardened criminals by the age of twelve, and streetwise enough to realise that they are able continually to offend, but at the same time rendered virtually immune to judicial retribution by a ridiculous law categorising them as being "below the age of criminal liability".

The latest crime statistics show that there were 5.2 million recorded criminal offences throughout England and Wales last year and only 326,000 convictions. Crime has risen dramatically during the six years that Labour has been in office. Recent figures also show that serious assaults have risen from less than 5,000 in 1980 to more than 15,000 in 2000, the rates of conviction being 29% and 13% respectively.

Despite local police claiming to be "getting to grips" with crime in Luton and Dunstable, there has been a 23% increase in robberies in less than a year. It is obvious that the police, far from achieving any noticeable success, are losing the battle altogether.

Our elected leaders (if "leader" is an appropriate term for any of those we have in Westminster today), our law enforcement agencies and the Crown Prosecution Service - all of whom are ultimately responsible for dealing with the problem - seem to be unable and unwilling to deal effectively with the deteriorating situation we find ourselves in.

Many people have argued, rightly or wrongly, that non-white immigrants and their offspring are largely responsible for the high level of violent and drug-related crime in areas with large ethnic communities. As far back as the mid 1970's, a national newspaper, according to police statistics at the time, reported that 75% of muggers were black and 85% of their victim's white.

It also happens to be an unfortunate fact that we are about the only country in which a law- abiding citizen can find himself facing prosecution and possible imprisonment for causing harm to a criminal when forced into taking drastic action in defence of himself and his property. A case in point is that of Norfolk farmer, Tony Martin, where the criminal was able to claim legal aid in order to sue and demand compensation from his victim for injuries incurred while committing his crime. That people are being forced to take what have become unlawful measures in defence of themselves or their property is a damning indictment of a system that has failed, and will go on doing so as long as those charged with the safety of society continue to allow their thinking to be influenced by 'progressives' rather than by public opinion

Dear Sir,

The government has carefully planned its policies in order to allow a situation to develop where an overwhelming number of foreigners are entering our country. The Labour Party cannot dispute the fact that uncontrolled immigration was in its manifesto prior to winning the 1997 General Election. This swamping process is what New Labour called its "open-door" policy. We can fairly confidently predict that the government will claim, as it has before, that the task to process these people has become near-impossible, so therefore it will grant them all an amnesty and hand them British citizenship.

Not only are we arranging our own downfall, we are financing it. So-called asylum seekers are sucking millions of pounds out of the public purse in the form of Legal Aid, housing and numerous benefits. Many of these illegal aliens are unemployable, and will remain so for as long as they live. It is common to find that they have no skills, speak little English, would rather resort to crime than work and have a basic contempt for our softness. The asylum-seeker situation has been made considerably worse by the new EU Human Rights laws. These insane measures would have been rejected by anyone other than a socialist government. Worse still, once registered here, they will be able to bring in their "extended families," and this classification is endless. The birth rate in Africa is 8.5 children per adult couple. In India, the number is slightly lower. In Britain, the current average figure is 1.6 children per family, and this includes babies born to immigrants, and, in addition, half-caste children. Neither of the latter groups of babies can be classified as European. Large ghettoes will form all over our countryside, populated with partisan ethnics who have no desire or, come to that, ability, to assimilate. Not even with each other.

This nightmare scenario has arisen because too many people have buried their heads in the sand, and pretended that it is not happening. These particular problems have been escalating for years, yet none of the main parties have offered a sensible solution. Those who voted for them cannot complain, for it is true that you only get the government you deserve. It is time that we rid ourselves of these nightmares. Become political; do not allow communists and foreigners to decide our fate. Surely we did not fight two world wars for no reason. Now we must fight overwhelming odds. If we can rekindle our spirit of nationalism, a return to our glorious past is possible.

M.W. Tunbridge Wells.

COMMENTS FROM THE EDITOR ON CRYPTO-SOCIALISTS

Some readers have asked if we are critical of socialists in general. The National Front itself can be considered a socialist party in as much as that we believe that the government has an obligation to care for the very young, the aged, the disabled and infirm, and those unable to work through no fault of their own. The state should also be responsible for healthcare and education for all British citizens, except for those who have chosen to make their own private provisions. A degree of socialism is essential.

Various political enemies of Britain have taken on the mantle of socialism to make themselves appear caring and responsible. Many of these wolves-in-sheep's-clothing can be identified as left-wing revolutionaries, Fabians, Bilderbergers, Marxists and the intrusive politically- correct brigade. Under the guise of socialism, they have all but ruined our national institutions, culture, religion and industry, and created a situation of lawlessness and rebellion..

It is they who have been in the vanguard of the attack upon our race and nation.

Although portraying themselves as socialists, these champagne-swilling revolutionaries will never be found carrying out acts of social benevolence. Come a catastrophe or national disaster in a remote corner of the world, could you see the likes of Tariq Ali, Jack Straw, Peter Mandelson, Roy Jenkins or Tony Blair digging out survivors in a tunnel that is liable to collapse. They are very charitable with our money, which they so lavishly hand out to bogus asylum-seekers. We have been informed that the government is even buying businesses as well as cars for these illegal invaders. In order to overcome government incompetence, and restore social services to a level nearer to what we expect, punitive stealth taxes have been introduced. This has meant that the public have effectively had their incomes cut. However, our shameless, quasi-socialist government without a care has awarded itself massive pay increases. At the time of writing, Parliamentarians are considering giving themselves even further enhanced emoluments.

Anyone who runs away with the idea that Labour's dotage on asylum-seekers and refugees has anything to do with a social conscience had better think again. Their motive is not only to swamp us with foreign nationals but also to make us poor, and therefore politically impotent.

Evidence of this can be seen in how the government regularly boasts of how many Asian millionaires there now are in Britain, while at the same time our own elderly and schoolchildren have been treated in an appalling manner. The whole aim of the crypto- socialists has been to destroy our national spirit and make us easily dominated. The origins and driving force of this left-wing phenomenon do not come from poor regions but are situated in New York, the financial powerhouse of America.

At the mention of the word "socialist", the Labour Party would like you to think of people like Mother Teresa, a near-saint who worked tirelessly for the poor and sick, without a thought for her own health. However, the reality of government socialism is more about crooks like Robert Maxwell and Jewish multi-millionaire string-pullers such as Lord Levy and members of the incredibly wealthy Sainsbury family.

Those in power would not be able to get public support for their true policies, so they have hidden their agenda under a cloak of socialism and in doing so they have tainted the word.

WHAT ELSE CAN THEY COME UP WITH?

Those who hand briefs down to our senior politicians must sit around a table and think what more can they do to bring suffering and death to the white man. Africans with aids are queuing up to get into Britain.

Once here, the government can now use the new Communist-inspired Human Rights Act as an excuse to keep them in the UK.

HIV- positive nurses are working in our hospitals, and we are told that we do not have a right to know who they are.

A report in the Barnet Times Group of newspapers, dated 8.8.02, informs us that African communities in the Borough have become the largest group with HIV/ Aids, there number having overtaken that of homosexuals in Barnet with the disease. Nationally, homosexuals and bi-sexuals are the most common victims of Aids, followed by people who inject drugs.

It is likely that the pattern in Barnet, where vast numbers of HIV black immigrants have recently settled, will be repeated in many other areas throughout the country. In some parts of Africa a third of the population has Aids. If we look at all three aspects of the HIV problem, we will see that, if not actually government induced, they have at least been exacerbated by government policy.

Firstly, homosexuality, which has been the main cause of the spread of the disease has been feverishly promoted by New Labour. Secondly, the recent decriminalisation and declassification of drugs has heightened a problem, which had already become severe due to a lack of commitment by the Home Office to deal adequately with drug pushers. Thirdly, our government has done its utmost to entice into Britain as many non-white foreigners as possible, without any concern of what diseases they might have.

It would seem that there are some extremist politicians on the left who actually see Aids as a political weapon.

To make matters worse, a campaign is being conducted by politicians, members of the entertainment business and advertising agencies, aimed at persuading our girls to pair up with negroes. In teen language, they are being told that it is "cool" to go out with blacks. African men see white girls as easy prey, made the more vulnerable by the Race Acts. African men have flocked to Britain in large numbers, but not so many African women. Many black females will not stand for the irresponsible and unpredictable behaviour of their African men, thus leaving our girls at the mercy of an even-greater number of them. We do not see much that is "cool" about Africans; they never invented the wheel, or copied it even after encountering vehicles being driven by Europeans. Since the whites have left Africa, many of the natives have drifted back towards the prehistoric state they were in when we first discovered them.

In order to protect our youth, we need to teach them the importance of marrying within their own race and not to have casual sex or get involved with drugs.

GOVERNMENT POLICIES ESCALATE DRUG ABUSE

Last year, a shock report showed that children as young as eleven were being lured into the drug scene. Sixty per cent of 15-year-olds have been offered drugs, and there has been a rapid rise in the number of abusers in the last two years. Many parents have been driven frantic with worry and have generally received little help from school staff or local authorities, who prefer to believe that the problem does not exist on their patch. Despite numerous warnings to the government on its plans to legalise cannabis and declassify other drugs, including Ecstasy, New Labour went ahead and did it anyway. As predicted, the changes have been profitable to the drug dealers and tragic for the teenagers.

Tuberculosis, a disease that had once been eradicated in Britain, has been reintroduced by Asians, particularly those coming from India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. There is an incurable version of the disease, which poses a threat to our children who have to attend schools, which have a high proportion of Asians. Cases of TB have been steadily rising since 1987. Professor Peter Ormerod at the Blackburn Royal Infirmary has said that TB cases are rising sharply due to a shortage of specialised doctors and nurses. Recently, a fresh outbreak of TB occurred after a family returned home from a visit to India. To cater for the constant to-ing and fro-ing of the Asian community, the government intend to build yet another London airport.

Police, ambulance men and the motoring organisations are well aware that a high percentage of road accidents are caused by drivers under the influence of drugs, these either having been prescribed by a doctor or taken as a form of abuse.

Young drivers are involved in a disproportionate number of crashes as well as being more likely to be high on drugs. What better way could there be to ensure more road fatalities than to reduce the age at which teenagers can learn to drive. Yes, you have guessed, the government wants to reduce the age when youngsters can drive. In the days of responsible government, the age was 18; New Labour want to reduce it to 16.

MORE FALSE HOPES

After a whole series of blunders Stephen Byers has at last been forced to resign. Let us face facts, he was never up to the job in the first place. Newspaper columnists have been writing in glowing terms about those who have taken up ministerial appointments in the reshuffle that followed. We all know that those taking over have no more ability than the ones they have replaced. In eighteen months time it will become painfully obvious that the new ministers are just as incompetent as those who went before. We will then witness yet another cabinet reshuffle carried out in order to try and fool the public once again that an improvement may follow.

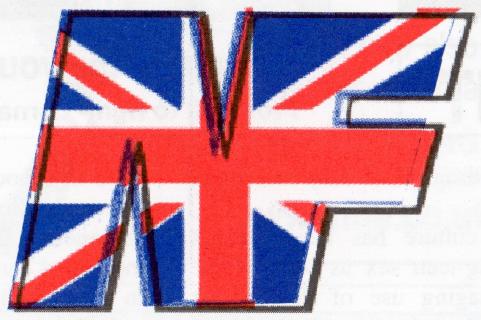
This New Labour government are clearly lacking in experience and common sense. A high proportion of there MPs have either worked in the judiciary or have been lecturers in abstract subjects. They are far removed from the real world in which the rest of us live. Also, most senior Labour MPs have been brainwashed with university Marxism in their teens and this has caused a permanent distortion of their political vision. They have had no practical experience of any public service or industry. Is it really surprising that under their leadership the NHS is inefficient? The railway system is falling apart, and they are incapable of making any project work.

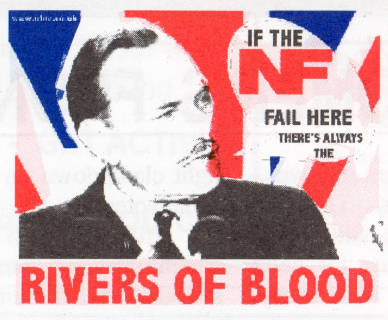
What is required of government is a body of MPs not only loyal to the Crown and the British people, but with sufficient knowledge to take on successfully the numerous and diverse duties of government. What we have at the moment is a collection of duped champagne-swilling socialists, so uniform in their politically-correct thinking that commonsense and public duty have long been abandoned. Another drawback of "New" Labour is that they do not want to get involved with anyone who gets his hands dirty; therefore they will never receive first-hand experience from those who understand the problems. Reintroducing apprenticeships in many areas of work would go a long way to solving the difficulties of providing knowledgeable staff. However, this is unlikely to happen because socialists have a particular dislike for the skilled working class, for the latter tend to be capable as well as thinkers and therefore right-wing. Clearly the government would employ foreigners or get work done overseas, rather than create a professional British workforce. This strange parliamentary attitude, no doubt stems from a long held socialist aim of "Reducing Britain's position in the world to that of Poland."

Eurocrats had concluded that not until we descended to that point would we see an advantage of being in the EU.

The National Front in 2002 - The Way forward

We are confident our policies are the way forward for the true British people and our once great Nation. The hardest task ahead is the awakening of the people to get off the road of dangers, perils and irreversible damage our traitorous governments want to take us down before it is too late for democratic change.





We have made massive gains this year through the Internet, on our Activities, in Local Elections and the sale of our Publications. This has seen the formation of several new very active Regions and Branches throughout Britain. We are busy building the solid base necessary to win elections.

Websites: www.natfront.com & Forum: www.natfront.net
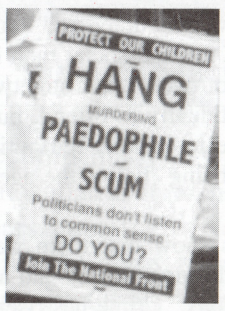
Our Resource Site, where you can listen to our Manifesto in ra. sound or download it in pdf format, along with various leaflets and a host of other National Front information and other sites are accessible from the NFNE site www.nfne.co.uk. Our sites are now bringing new people into our movement on a daily basis.

Activities: The biggest advance is in our Region/Branch level non-confrontational street activities, taking our policies to the public and gaining their support. The "just turn up and do it" policy for activities has been successfully put into practice by the North East since February and it is not uncommon for 25+ to turn out for a "papersale and leaflet drive or single issue like the Boycott B&Q demo".

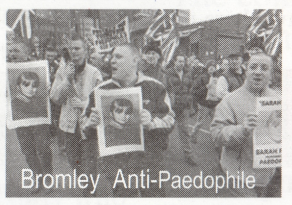


Boycott B&Q demo

This is very effective and productive as you get your point over to the general public and you get a chance to talk to people of all ages and from all walks of life without any police turning up as the red rabble and media whores are nowhere to be seen. Many shake our hands and are given encouragement by the fact we are willing to stand up and say what the silent majority are thinking!

This tactic has now been adopted on a National level by NFHQ touring the country visiting different regions in coordination with the local Branch for various "Days of Action", with issues placards, papers and thousands of leaflets being given out.

Terry Blackham will still apply to the police to hold the regular National activities; marches and rallies that you are all welcome to attend as we are grateful for support in all quarters especially in the ballot box and by way of financial donation. All we ask of our supporters on events is "remember we are Nationalist".



Bromley Anti-Paedophile

So we now have National, Regional, Branch, Active Unit and lone wolf activities constantly building up our grass roots public and cross party support and an ever increasing membership.

Elections: The local elections this year were for us a toe in the water to gauge the new level of support. The results and percentage of the vote were very encouraging and we are now in a position to field more candidates in future local and general elections.

Publications: Our Newspaper "The Flame" and the "NF News" are doing well with a good distribution and subscription list. Send 3 x 1st class stamps for a sample copy. A new magazine called "Excalibur" is also in the pipelne. The North East also have a quarterly 8 page news sheet that is available by post or free in pdf format on the website.

In conclusion, despite all the media criticism and determined efforts by the left to destroy our morale, we're still here after all these years and we're gaining strength. Loyalty, hard work and dedication have been our watchwords and we will continue to fight for Britain's right to self-determination, whatever it takes, for however long it takes and we will succeed in our mission because for us there is just no platform for failure. N. Fowler, NFNE
